PRICE THREE CENTS

M. E. CONFERENCE

Fifty-third Session Will Be Held at Crisfield, Md.

WILL OPEN ON MARCH 29TH

Plans are practically completed at Crisfield, Md., for the assembling of the fifty-third session of the Wilmington Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will hold its first session at Immanuel Church, on Wednesday, March 30, following a preliminary session on Tuesday night. Bishop W. F. McDowell of Washington will preside over the deliberations of the conference.

The Wilmington Conference has been entertained twice before by Immanuel Church—once in 1886 and again in 1912. The ministers of the conference are manifesting keen interest in the approaching sessions, as considerable important work is to be accomplished. The Lay Conference, which has been called to meet during the week, will probably hold only a one-day session, as the plans of the entertaining church did not include entertainment for it, and Crisfield has no hotel or other facilities to care for the large number who will probably be in attendance.

The preliminary session of the conference will be held at night, Tuesday, March 29, in charge of Rev. Dr. John W. R. Sumwalt, and will be addressed by Rev. Dr. Luther E. Lovejoy, of Chicago. On March 30 the organization of the conference will be effected after the sacrament is administered. The business sessions will be held each morning. On Wednesday the anniversary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will be observed, with Mrs. William H. Carson presiding. Mrs. Florence Hooper, of Baltimore, will be the speaker. The anniversary of the Women's Home Missionary Society will be held Thursday, Mrs. Emma L. Weidman presiding and Mrs. D. B. Street of Washington, making the address. The Veterans' recognition services will be held Friday afternoon, continuing at the evening session, in charge of Rev. Dr. E. H. Dashiell, and addresses will be delivered by Rev. Dr. J. B. Hingley of New York and Rev. Dr. Watson F. Hannan, professor of exegetical theology, Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J. Dr. Hannan will also speak at several other sessions of the conference. The memorial service will be held Sunday afternoon, with Rev. Dr. T. E. Terry as chairman.

Other branches of church work having special recognition include the Centenary Movement, the Epworth League, the Sunday School and the Anti-Saloon League. Among the speakers will be: Rev. Drs. W. J. Wade and Charles E. Guthrie of Chicago; Clarence True Wilson, of Washington; G. W. Crabbe of the Anti-Saloon League; Joseph C. Tate, of Chicago; W. S. Rowe, a returned missionary from Africa; W. G. Harris, Milton McCann, W. S. Bovard, E. C. Bebohn, E. C. Prettyman, R. K. Stephenson. Music will be furnished by the conference choir, under the direction of former Representative Walter O. Hoffecker, of Delaware, and by the choir of Immanuel Church. The entertainment of the ministers and delegates is furnished free by the members of Immanuel Church.

Chicken House Robbed

During the past month thieves have paid several visits to the farm of Mr. I. N. Biddle, near Mt. Pleasant, and carried away 75 of his best fowls. Mr. Biddle suspects a certain individual who has served time in the New Castle County workhouse for a similar offense and is trying to get sufficient evidence to cause his arrest.

OBITUARY

Horatio W. Pharo

Horatio W. Pharo, Sr., died at his home one mile east of Middletown, at five o'clock, Monday, aged 84 years. Deceased had been confined to the house for several months, and his death was the result of general debility.

Mr. Pharo was a native of Philadelphia, a veteran of the Civil War, and a former member of the Delaware Legislature. He came to Delaware about 50 years ago, and later bought the farm known as "Beak House", where he died.

In politics Mr. Pharo was a staunch Republican and for many years took an active part in the affairs of the party in both county and state.

His wife who was Miss Martha Merritt, daughter of Schee Merritt, died in December 1919. Mr. Pharo leaves a daughter, Mrs. Edward W. Pharo, of Camden, N. J., and a son, Horatio W. Pharo, Jr., who made his home with his father.

THE FISHING LAW

Frederick D. Bessler, chairman of the fish commission appointed by Governor Denney to confer with a like commission from New Jersey, relative to the drafting of uniform fishing laws, regulating the taking of fish from the Delaware River and Bay, visited Trenton last Thursday and conferred with Harry Foley, secretary to Governor Edwards.

Mr. Bessler was advised that the New Jersey House and Senate have passed the resolution, providing for the appointment of a commission by the Governor of New Jersey. He was also informed that Governor Edwards would immediately appoint the three members of the New Jersey commission.

Upon the appointment of the commission by Governor Edwards there will be a joint conference of the two commissions, probably to be held in Trenton. The Delaware Commission has held several hearings and has heard the wishes of the Delaware fishermen. The first conference of the two commissions will likely result in some definite action as the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission has the situation in that State in good shape. It is expected that the commissions will be able to agree upon legislation, which will be agreeable to the fishermen of both States.

The work of the Delaware Commission is to be finished in time for action by the Legislature, which adjourns late this month.

ERADICATING TUBERCULOSIS

In answer to inquiries the State Board of Agriculture makes the following statement relative to the tuberculosis eradication work:

First, the appropriation made by the Legislature is still available and the work is going on in all three counties. All the reacting animals must be slaughtered. Whatever is received for the carcasses and hides belongs to the owner of the cattle and the owner is cautioned not to sell his animals at too small a price. If sold to a butcher there should, ordinarily, be competition and wherever a carcass can be assembled, especially in New Castle County, they may be shipped to an abattoir with the approval of the United States Inspector in Charge, and killed under Federal inspection.

All carcasses that pass this inspection will be sold for food. Those that do not pass will be condemned and used for fertilizers or meat scrap.

After deducting the amount received for the animals from the appraisal the United States will pay the owner one-third of this difference up to twenty-five dollars per head, and the State will pay one-half of this difference. In the case of purebred animals the Government will pay up to fifty dollars and the State up to one hundred and fifty.

Any other information will be cheerfully furnished by the State Board of Agriculture from the office at Dover.

Ban on School Dances

Wilmington is in the throes of a controversy over the recent order of Superintendent Clifford J. Scott doing away with the dances of children in the public schools. Mr. Scott said he had stopped the dances to investigate whether they were "immoral" or not, although, he said, he had had no complaints, but had taken action because he had "heard" there was opposition.

Oscar C. Draper, a member of the Board of Education, recently said that those who had complained of the dances were "fanatics." The Methodist Preachers' Association, in a resolution, severely censured Mr. Draper and warned him to "well weigh his words as a public official," and new C. Walter Kadel, instructor of calisthenics in the schools and physical director of the Y. M. C. A., comes forth with the announcement that the dances are "harmless" and that Wilmington is "behind the times."

Home and School Bake

Much unkind criticism has been heard regarding the bake held at the school house, in Odessa, under the auspices of the Home and School Association last Friday evening. Charges of holding a public dance were made by people who were not present. The school children were allowed to dance in the small space around the desks, under the chaperonage of the officers of the Home and School Association, and with the full approval of the school commissioners of Odessa. A challenge is offered to anyone to prove there was any improper conduct during the evening. The School Bake was most successful and nearly $25 cleared. Besides home-made cakes, pies, biscuits, etc., ice cream was sold. Much merriment was created by selling shadows, and the Home and School Association wish to thank each and every member and friend, who labored to make the Bake a success.

The Voice of the Pack

By EDISON MARSHALL

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

He called once to Lennox, snatched the shotgun that still stood where he had placed it in the corner of the room, and hastened to the corral. The mare whickered plaintively when he took her from her food.

When Snowbird first heard the step in the thickets beside her, she halted bravely and held her lantern high. She understood at last. The very extremity of the beams found a reflection in two very curious circles of greenish fire:
a fire that was old upon the world before man ever rubbed two sticks together to strike a flame. Of course the dim rays had simply been reflected on the eyes of some great beast of prey.

She identified it at once. Only the eyes of the felines, with vertical pupils, have this identical greenish glare.
The eyes of the wolves glow in the darkness, but the circles are usually bright points. Of course it was a cougar.

She didn't cry out again. Realizing at last the reality of her peril, her long training in the mountains came to her aid. That did not mean she was not truly and terribly afraid. The beast was hunting her. She couldn't doubt this fact. Curiously might make a lion follow her, but it would never beget such a wild light of madness in his eyes as this she had just seen. She simply clamped down all her moral strength on her rising hysteria and looked her situation in the face. Her hand flew instinctively to her side,
and the pistol leaped in the lantern
light.

But the eyes had already blinked
out before she could raise the weapon.
She shot twice. The echoes roared back, unbelievably loud in the silence,
and then abruptly died; and the only sound was a rustling of leaves as the cougar crouched. She sobbed once, then hurried on.

She was afraid to listen at first. She wanted to believe that her pistol fire would frighten the animal from her trail. She knew, under ordinary conditions, that it would. If he still followed, it could mean but one thing—
that some unheard-of incident had occurred to destroy his fear of men. It would mean that he had knowingly set upon her trail and was hunting her with all the age-old remorselessness
that is the code of the mountains.

For a little while all was silence.
Then out of the thicket the cougar suddenly crashed and shook on the opposite side of the trail. She fired blindly into the thicket. Then she caught herself with a sob. But two shells remained in her pistol, and they must be saved for the test.

Whisperfoot the cougar, remembering the lessons of his youth, turned from the trail when he had first heard Snowbird's step. He had crouched and let her pass. She was walking into the wind; and as she was at the closest point a message had blown back to him.

The hair went straight on his shoulders and along his spine. His blood, running cold an instant before from fear, made a great leap in his veins.
A picture came in his dark mind: the chase for a deer when the moon had set, the stir of a living thing that broke twigs in the thickets, and the leap he had made. There had been blood, that night—the wildness and the madness and the exultation of the kill.
Of course there had been terror first,
but the terror had soon departed and left something lying warm and still in the thickets. It was the same game that walked his trail in front—game
that died easily and yet, in a vague way he did not understand, the noblest game of all. It was living flesh, to tear with talon and fang.

All his training, all the instincts imbued in him by a thousand generations of cougars who knew this greatest fear, were simply obliterated by the sudden violence of his hunting-madness. He had tasted this blood once, and it could never be forgotten. The flame leaped in his eyes. And then he began the stalk.

A cougar, trying to creep silently
on its game, does not move quickly. It simply steals, as a serpent steals through the grass. Whisperfoot stalked for a period of five minutes, to learn that the prey was farther away from him at every step.

He trotted forward until he came close, and again he stalked. Again he found, after a few minutes of silent creeping through the thickets, that he had lost distance. Evidently this game did not feed slowly, like the deer. It was to be a chase, then.
Again he trotted within one hundred feet of the girl.

Three times more he tried to stalk
before he finally gave it up altogether.
This game was like the porcupine—
simply to be chased down and taken.
And in the case of all animals that hunt their game by overtaking it, there was no longer any occasion for going silently. The thing to do was to come close and spring from the trail behind.

Though the fear was mostly gone,
the cougar retained enough of that caution that most wild animals exhibit when hunting a new game so that he didn't attempt to strike Snowbird down at once. But as the chase went on, his passion grew upon him.
Ever he crept nearer. And at last he sprang full into the thickets beside her.

At that instant she had shot for the first time. Because the light had left his eyes before she could find aim, both shots had been clean misses. And terrible as the reports were, he was too engrossed in the chase to be frightened away by mere sound. This was the cry the man-pack always made—these sudden, startling sounds

In the silence. But he felt no pain.
He crouched a moment, shivering.
Then he bounded on again.

The third shot was a miss too: in fact, there had been no chance for a hit. A sound in the darkness is as unreliable a target as can possibly be imagined. And it didn't frighten him as much as the others. He waited, crouching, and the girl started on.

She was making other sounds now—queer, whimpering sounds not greatly different from the bleat that the fawn utters when it dies. It was a fear-sound, and if there is one emotion
with which the wild beasts are acquainted, in all its phases, it is fear.
She was afraid of him, then, and that meant he need no longer be in the least afraid of her. His skin began to twitch all over with that terrible madness and passion of the flesh-hunters.

This game was like the deer, and the thing to do was lie in wait. There was only one trail. He wasn't afraid of losing her in the darkness. She was neither fleet like the deer nor courageous like Wolf the bear. He had only to wait and leap from the darkness when she passed.

When Dan Felling, riding like mad over the mountain trail, heard the third shot from Snowbird's pistol, he felt that one of the debts he owed had come due at last. He seemed to know,
as the darkness pressed around him,
that he was to be tried in the fire. And the horse staggered beneath him as he tried to hasten.

He showed no mercy to his mount.
Horse-flesh isn't made for carrying a heavy man over such a trail as this,
and she was red-nosed and lath-ered before half a mile had been covered. He made her leap up the rocks, and on fairly level stretches he loosed
the reins and lashed her into a gallop.
Only a mountain horse could have stood that test. He gave no thought to his own safety. His courage was at the test, and no risk of his own life must interfere with his attempt to save Snowbird from the danger that threatened her. He didn't know when the horse would fall with him
and precipitate him down a precipice, and he was perfectly aware that to crash into a low-hanging limb of one of the great trees beside the trail would probably crush his skull. But he took the chance. And before the ride was done he found himself pleading with the horse, even as he lashed her sides with his whip.

The lesser forest creatures sprang
from his trail; and once the mare
leaped high to miss a dark shadow

She Shot Twice.

that crossed in front. As she caught her stride, Dan heard a squeal and a rattle of quills that identified the creature as a porcupine.

By now he had passed the first of the worst grades, coming out upon long, easy slope of open forest. Again he urged his horse, leaving to her keen senses alone the choosing of the path between the great tree trunks.

Then he heard Snowbird fire for the fourth time; and he knew that he had almost overtaken her. The report seemed to smash the air. And he lashed his horse into the fastest run she knew—a wild, sobbing figure in the darkness.

"She's only got one shot more," he said. He knew how many bullets her pistol carried; and the danger—whatever it was—must be just at hand. Underbrush cracked beneath him. And then the horse drew up with a jerk that almost hurled him from the saddle.

He lashed at her in vain. She was not afraid in the darkness and the rocks of the trail, but some Terror in the woods in front had in an instant broken his control over her. She reared, snorting; then danced in an impotent circle. Meanwhile, precious seconds were fleeing.

He understood now. The horse stood still, shivering beneath him, but would not advance a step. The silence deepened. Somewhere in the darkness before him a great cougar was waiting by the trail, and Snowbird, hoping for the moment that it had given up the chase, was hastening through the shadows squarely into its ambush.

Whisperfoot crouched lower; and again his long serpent of a tail began the little vertical motion that always

Copyright, 1921, by Little, Brown & Co.

precedes his leap. He had not forgotten the wild rapture of that moment
he had inadvertently sprung on Landy Hildreth—or how, after his terror had died, he had come creeping back. He hunted his own way, waiting on the trail; and his madness was at its height. He was not just Whisperfoot the coward, that runs at the shadow of a tall form in the thickets. The consummation was complete, and that single experience of a month before had made of him a hunter of men.
His muscles set for the leap.

So intent was he that his keen senses didn't detect the fact that there was a curious echo to the girl's footsteps. Dan Felling had slipped down from his terrified horse and was running up the trail behind her, praying that he could be in time.

Snowbird heard the pat, pat of his feet; but at first she did not dare to hope that aid had come to her. She had thought of Dan as on the far-away marshes; and her father, the only other living occupant of this part of the Divide, might even now be lying dead in his house. In her terror, she had lost all power of interpretation of events. The sound might be the cougar's mate, or even the wolf pack, jealous of his game. Sobbing, she hurried on into Whisperfoot's ambush.

Then she heard a voice, and it seemed to be calling to her. "Snowbird—I'm coming, Snowbird," a man's strong voice was shouting. She whirled with a sob of thankfulness.

At that instant the cougar sprang.
Terrified though she was, Snow-bird's reflexes had kept sure and true.
Even as the great cat leaped, a long,
lithe shadow out of the shadow, her finger pressed back against the trigger of her pistol. She had been carrying her gun in front of her, and she fired it, this last time, with no conscious effort. It was just a last instinctive effort to defend herself.

One other element affected the issue. She had whirled to answer Dan's cry just as the cougar left the ground.
But she had still been in range. The only effect was to lessen, in some degree, the accuracy of the spring. The bullet caught the beast in mid-air;
but even if it had reached its heart,
the momentum of the attack was too great to be completely overcome.
Snowbird only knew that some vast, resistless power had struck her, and that the darkness seemed to roar and explode about her.

Hurled to her face in the trail, she did not see the cougar sprawl on the earth beside her. The flame in the lantern almost flicked out as it fell from her hand, then flashed up and down, from the deepest gloom to a vivid glare with something of the effect of lightning flickering in the sky.
Nor did she hear the first frenzied
thrashing of the wounded animal.
Kindly unconsciousness had fallen, obscuring this and also the sight of the great cat, in the agony of its wound, creeping with broken shoulder and bared claws across the pine needles toward her defenseless body.

WORLD'S MOST LONELY SPOT

Not a Desolate Island Nor the Center of a Crowded City, but the Unfriendly Heart.

Asked to name the loneliest place
in the world, a traveler once answered,
"The island of Tristan d'Acunha, far off the coast of South America. Its population is 70, and it is visited by a vessel only once in two years."

But the traveler was all wrong. Isolated, remote, limited in society, the island may be. But why loneliness?
The last thing we heard from it was that all the inhabitants were working together to fight a dangerous plague of rats. When people can get together for a common purpose they aren't lonesome.

A man told us the other day that the loneliest place he ever found was New York city, where he didn't know a soul and his being there didn't matter to anyone. And he was right, but he set about changing that condition, and he didn't find even New York lonesome very long. For the lonesomeness of a place is no question of geography or population or economics. The lone-somest place is always the human heart which hasn't learned how to reach out to other human hearts in the sure knowledge that there will be something in common, that if it has affection to spend, and loyalty and truth and friendliness, there are these things in return waiting to welcome it.

Correct Way to Receive Burglar.

The old plan of offering a burglar a cigarette and asking him to take a chair while you telephone to the police is not now so successful as in the past. The best plan is to tackle the fellow right away. For this purpose you should step behind him, take hold of his coat and force it over his face.
Then tie his left arm to his right leg
across the back. Properly carried out,
this method rarely fails.—London

The Astrologer in China.

From the earliest times astrology
has been one of the arts surrounded by mystery. But in China it is a very perilous profession. When a so-called prophet predicts an event which does not occur, he loses his head.

When a young man feels that he doesn't want another fellow making goo-goo eyes at his best girl—that is love.

Many a man has risked acquiring a

The Tractor That Stays

It is pretty generally accepted now that the farm power of the future will be generated by kerosene and other low-grade, low-priced fuels. A tractor that operates successfully on these fuels, insuring dependable power at drawbar and belt, is the tractor that will stay because it will pay.

International 8-16 Tractor

has established its reputation for satisfactory performance in the school of experience. It has passed successfully through long and rigid tests under actual field conditions in all sections of the country.

Belt work is becoming more and more important.
The use of small threshers, ensilage cutters, etc., combined with a suitable tractor, is making the farmer more and more independent.

All of this emphasizes the value to you of an International 8-16 tractor that is designed to do tip-top belt work as well as taking care of field and road jobs.

HYSTERIA

Dr. Charles R. Herty, of the American Chemical Society, is reported as urging the destruction of the German dye plants. That is going a little bit too far. The chemical industry is Germany's chief asset. Destroy that and the likelihood of ever securing the payment of the German indemnity would be exceedingly remote. No nation on earth has made such contributions to science in the way of dyestuffs as has Germany. That her dye plants were devoted to the manufacture of explosives for war purposes is no reason why they should be destroyed now. So long as the plants are devoted to legitimate purposes they are a benefit to mankind. So far as our own new dye industry is concerned, adequate protection through tariff duties will prevent the Germans from putting the American manufacturers out of commission, yet, at the same time permitting the German manufacturers a reasonable share of our market—such a share, for instance, as would prevent the business from falling into the hands of a monopoly here. Dr. Herty seems to be one of those who have not recovered from war hysteria, if he is quoted correctly.

NOT FOR US!

JUST suppose that Congress should consent to the recommendation that German bonds be accepted by this country in lieu of Belgium's debt to us of $175,000,000. How long would it be before all the other creditors of the United States would be appealing for similar generous treatment? But Congress will do nothing of the sort. Representatives and Senators are looking after the welfare of their own people and have no intention of consenting to an arrangement that would have the probable effect of saddling upon them an additional burden of $11,000,000,000. Congress and the people generally are witnessing with interest the supreme council distributing among themselves the huge territory in Africa and the Pacific Islands won from Germany, from the development of which they will eventually add billions of dollars to their national wealth. With that picture before their eyes there is no inclination to enrich foreign treasuries further at the expense of the United States.

TAXES AND TRIBUTE

"If this republic is to endure, we must hold fast to the faith of the fathers," declared Rear-Admiral Sammy McGowan, in Peoria, Ill., recently, "translating into action the principles to which they pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor, and remember always that battles cost more than battleships, taxes are cheaper than tribute, and a little navy is a dangerous thing." That's good stuff! Sammy McGowan put the navy on a business basis during the war. Sammy and his brother officers took the affairs of the navy out of the hands of Jo Daniels as soon as we got into the shindig, and ran the navy as America would have it run. That is why the navy had no aftermaths. It was a bad precedent, but Daniels was its justification.

Why Colds Are Dangerous

It is the serious diseases that colds lead to that makes them dangerous. They prepare the system for the reception and development of the germs of influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles. You are much more likely to contract these diseases when you have a cold. For that reason you should get rid of every cold as quickly as possible. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will help you. It is widely known as a cure for bad colds.

She States it Mildly

While suffering with a severe attack of the grip and threatened with pneumonia, Mrs. Annie H. Cooley, of Middletown, Conn., began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was very much benefited by its use. The pains in the chest soon disappeared, the cough became loose, expectoration easy and in a short time she was as well as ever. Mrs. Cooley says she cannot speak too highly in praise of this remedy.

IN THE SPRING YOUR BLOOD NEEDS A TONIC

Winter Weakens Blood, Makes Faces Pale. Take Gude's Pepto-Mangan

The Best Known Blood Tonic

Drowsy Spring-Fever Feeling That Comes From Sluggish Blood Will Soon Leave You

As all growing things on earth shoot into new life in Springtime, so do the billions of cells that make up each part of the body renew their vigor.

As you open the windows, breathe the Spring air, and let in the sunshine, the red corpuscles in your blood should carry more oxygen to the tiny cells.

The red corpuscles are tiny disc-shaped particles, swimming in enormous numbers in the blood. They carry oxygen to cells in all parts of the body, and they carry away worn-out waste matter. Sometimes, especially in the Spring, after the winter indoors and more or less sickness, the red corpuscles themselves need rebuilding. Gude's Pepto-Mangan contains just the ingredients to give them greater power to absorb oxygen and to distribute it throughout the body.

That is why it is such a good Spring tonic. It helps so much to bring back color to cheeks made pale and wan by the necessary indoor winter life. It adds to the number of red corpuscles. With fine Spring days and Gude's Pepto-Mangan you gain in vigor and attain good health.

Don't go around drowsy this Spring. Take that good tonic, Gude's Pepto-Mangan. You can get it in tablet form or in liquid form at your druggist's. Both forms have the same medicinal value. Insist upon genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Advertisement.

A. E. F. Landmarks Going

Gradually the landmarks of the American army that first reached the Rhine are disappearing. The old buildings that sheltered the first army amusements and recreations are being demolished, and the latest one to feel the blow of the wrecker's hammer is the victory hut in Coblenz.

This hut was built to provide an adequate eating place for the soldiers coming in from the various bridge-heads. A corps of civilian workers were kept busy preparing and serving the food for the 7,000 men who were fed there each day. At first the entire building was used as a cafeteria, but when the most of the divisions had gone home and the A. E. F. became the A. F. G., half of the building was converted into a wet canteen for the service of light lunches, ice cream, etc., and the other side was still used as the cafeteria.

November 5, last year, a heavy snow storm came near ending the career of the hut. The weight of snow on the roof was so great that the main pillars buckled and distorted the floor to such an extent that the authorities questioned the advisability of making the necessary repairs. The demand for a skating rink, however, was so insistent that after much discussion the building was altered and the athletic enthusiasts, as well as the skating enthusiasts, used the building during the winter. From the Stars and Stripes.

Sweet Potatoes.

The sweet potato may soon be a much more common vegetable in our markets than heretofore. Its season has been restricted by the difficulty of keeping it for any length of time in storage. Unlike the white potato, it began to deteriorate as soon as it came out of the ground.

This trouble is understood to have been overcome by new methods of curing, and plants specially designed for the storage of sweet potatoes have recently been established at many points in the South.

Improved and much sweeter varieties have been developed, and a campaign is being organized to promote the marketing of better sweet potatoes on a greater scale all over the country.

The sweet potato, of course, is not really a potato at all, but a kind of yam. It is, like the so-called "Irish" potato, an American vegetable by origin.

DEVIL OF BRAZIL

Mischievous Imp a Creation of The Aborigines.

Is Pictured as Having Strong Spice of Humor and Little Desire to Hurt Human Beings—Has But One Leg.

His color is black, his nose broad and flat. A long, pointed tongue is sticking out of his mouth; the teeth are triangular and sharp; otherwise he has the face of an infant. He has three fingers on each hand, as shown by the traces he leaves on the bark of trees he climbs. His palms are pierced in the middle. His ears are big and he wears a red cloak and cap. He smells of sulphur and his eyes emit a thick, stifling smoke. But his most distinctive characteristic is that he has only one leg; he neither walks nor runs, but jumps along, writes a New York Tribune man.

This is the description compiled from the accounts of many witnesses, of Sacy Perere, special indigenous devil of Brazil, whose biography was not long ago published in book form at Sao Paulo. The preface declares that there is so little original, native element in Brazilian culture that it is worth while to preserve whatever there is. So the great Brazilian newspaper, O Estado de Sao Paulo, instituted an inquiry regarding Sacy Perere, who is described as one of the very few tropical native products. Readers were asked to submit whatever they knew or heard concerning this Brazilian representative of the Evil One and the answers were collected in the book entitled "O Sacy Perere" (the Sacy Perere). In the Neue Zürcher Zeitung Dr. A. Usterl publishes extracts from the testimony, out of which Sacy emerges as a fairly harmless, amiable and humorous sort of devil, who, in spite of his terrifying appearance, does not really want to hurt human beings, although he is fond of practical jokes of a rather crude brand.

Sacy Perere is 100 per cent American. He was here before Columbus, for he was invented by the aborigines of Brazil, the Tupi Indians. His name is of Tupi origin, Caa Cy, meaning evil eye, and perere, the jumping one. So Caa Cy Perere, Portugueseified into Sacy Perere, means jumping evil eye. To his above description should be added that, according to a witness of scientific accomplishments, his smell comes from sulphur hydrogen (H₂S).

His one leg has a story, told by old negroes, who have it from their slave ancestors. According to this story, once upon a time the devil decided to give a banquet in his cave. There was plenty of everything and more than plenty of cabana (sugar cane brandy). The guests got so drunk they could hardly move, and the ensuing confusion gave a chance to a gang of small devils' apprentices to go jorjidding to the earth. The devil became enraged and pursued the youngsters, capturing them all except one, whose leg, however, he slashed off. The little devil was the original Sacy, and his off spring were born with one leg only. Now the Sacs are very clever and swift and they can easily put it over on the devil, though they are one-legged.

The Sacy and his gang appear usually during tornadoes, when they ride the wind. They alight on the backs of horses and tie knots in their manes. Sometimes a Sacy is observed on the roof of a house. He scares the passer-by or throws dirt down the chimney.

Better Not Change Left-Handers.

If a child be naturally left handed, it should be allowed to remain so, for an attempt to train it to right-handedness may easily result in making it mentally inferior. Dr. H. Griesbach emphasizes this in an article in the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift (Berlin), explaining that in left-handed persons the speech center is in the right hemisphere of the brain instead of in the left hemisphere, as is the case in right-handed persons.

The result of persistent efforts to make them right-handed may be a speech center that is not predominantly situated on either side, which condition Griesbach says interferes with the differentiation of the hemispheres throughout childhood and adolescence.

He says that once the unilateral hemisphere differentiation is complete, as it is in adults, a re-education from left to right or from right to left-handedness will do no harm to the brain.

Iceberg Was an Acrobat.

Not far from the spot where the Titanic was sunk by an iceberg in April, a fleet of 14 icebergs, some of them rising to more than 100 feet above the water line, were sighted by the steamship Munaires on a recent voyage.

Captain Fleming of the Munaires says that one of the bergs gave a remarkable exhibition of tumbling as the vessel sailed past. It had apparently lost a good deal of its under water weight through the action of the warm sea water, and as they watched it the great iceberg suddenly tipped to starboard and rolled over with an immense splash. As it fell, a big section of the top broke away, with the result that the balance was altered and the berg tumbled back again. Then, just as it was righting itself, another section broke off, and it tumbled once more. The sight was a most unusual one.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Get Lucky Tips in Dreams.

When an Italian has a dream he doesn't go tell his friends about it for the sake of making conversation, but hurries to get his dream book to find out what the dream portends. The book has a number for everything man wears, has, eats and sees. Things shown in a dream are looked up, and the corresponding numbers are played by the Italian in the week's national lottery. And if he doesn't win, says Kenneth L. Roberts in the Saturday Evening Post, he feels positive that somebody with the Evil Eye has looked at him and broken his chances.

The Ways of Destiny

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

There was something about the young man who approached her in the suit and cloak department of the store where she had just been employed, that won the attention of Irene Dawson at once. This was her second week at earning a living, and not yet had interest in noticing and studying the various types of people who came along abated. Home and school had confined her girlhood to a narrow scope, and bustling business life fascinated her with a presentation like to a constantly changing diorama.

"I am to see the manager, if you please," spoke the young man, and his tones corresponded with his delicate, refined face. "It is about a coat," and he set down a suitcase he had carried.

"Miss Lowe has gone to the stockroom and will be here in a few minutes," Irene apprised him, and just then the lady in question appeared. Irene busied herself folding and sorting some silk sweaters, and, as was her wont, mentally analyzing the caller, picturing him as an artist, or poet, or a professional man of some sort, judging him by his intellectual features and trying to surmise the cause of a somewhat sad expression in his eyes. He and the lady manager were engrossed for some time in discussing a lady's street coat which the suitcase contained. She wrote him out a cashier's check, placed the returned garment aside, and was busy making a notation on a tab, when Irene passed to her side. "Walter Morse," read Irene, and an address.

"Poor man. Rather a peculiar case," said Miss Lowe. "His mother purchased the coat here a week ago and died three days later. From what he tells me she had taken charge of two children of a dead daughter, and now these are left to his care. Nothing is at hand to provide for the little brood, and I fancy he is not himself possessed of any material surplus of income. Oh, my dear," she called after Irene, as the latter moved away, "you told me you were thinking of a new winter coat."

"Yes, when winter comes and I have saved up enough to buy it," laughed Irene.

"Well, here is your chance," announced Miss Lowe, and she held up the article just returned.

Irene inspected the garment eagerly. The low price was irresistible. "I will take it," she said, and that evening carried it home fully satisfied with a purchase that provided her with a cold-weather wrap at one-half its real value.

Irene's mother approved the bargain and was interested in Irene's story of the incident that had led to its acquisition. The Dawsons had known comfort and plenty until the head of the family died, and Irene was now the sole support of her aged mother.

"I will get at the coat tomorrow, dear," said the latter. "It is quite long, and I think the best way to do would be to turn in the defaced edge."

So for the time being, the garment was forgotten, but not so the interesting young man who had brought it to the store. Irene consulted the telephone book. Yes, there it was: "Walter Morse, Ceramics." "I felt sure he followed some artistic calling," Irene told herself, and then blushed consciously. "Why," she cheated herself into saying, "one would think I was in love with him. What nonsense!" but went to bed still thinking of Mr. Walter Morse.

The following day was one of short working hours and Irene came home early. Her mother met her at the door in a great state of excitement.

"I came near sending for you," she fluttered. "I could hardly wait till you came home. Oh, Irene! the most wonderful thing! In an inside pocket of the coat, sewed up, I found—but come and see for yourself."

Upon the dining-room table lay the coat and beside it was a small bank book. It was open and its first page recorded a recent entry of two thousand dollars. Beside it was an envelope containing a certificate of deposit for a like amount and a dozen Liberty bonds.

"Don't you see, Irene?" said Mrs. Dawson, "the mother of the young man sewed that treasure into the pocket as a safe way to keep it and died before she could tell him about it."

"We must get to him at once," declared Irene. "I know he was worrying because nothing could be found to provide for the children," and at once she insisted on her mother accompanying her to the address given by Mr. Walter Morse.

The conjecture of Mrs. Dawson was correct and gladness, relief and gratitude showed in the face of Walter Morse when his two unexpected callers appeared. Irene felt in love with the cherubic orphan at first sight. The young man asked outright if Mrs. Dawson would undertake their care until he made more permanent arrangements, and the Dawson home was enlivened by the constant presence of the little tots.

The "permanent arrangements" materialized, as they were bound to do where two young souls were mutually interested. They were ushered in by the love god, and included the housing of the five, a happy and harmonious family under one and the same roof.

RUB OUT SORENESS, SPRAINS, BACKACHE WITH OLD ST. JACOBS OIL

Back hurt? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now, listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil!" Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Lumber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years. Stop dragging kidneys! They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain.—Adv.

STOMACH MISERY

Today is ours, what do we fear? Today is ours; we have it here; Let's treat it kindly, that it may, Wish at least, with us to stay. Let's banish business, banish sorrow; To the gods belongs tomorrow. —Anacreon.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

When roasting pork salt it at intervals and insert slices of tart apple. The apple gives the gravy a delicious flavor.

When salting olives use olive oil instead of butter. It gives a better flavor.

Candy animals may be made from the celluloid animals bought at the ten-cent store. Separate each animal along the seam with a sharp knife and fill the mold, after giving it a coating of butter, with fondant. In a few minutes remove and set aside to dry. The children will be delighted with these candy animals.

A good foundation for any cream soup is one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, the butter bubbling hot when the flour is added. Cook until smooth, then add one pint of milk, seasoning, and one cupful of any vegetable which has been mashed or put through a sieve. For tomato soup a pint is the usual quantity with a pinch of soda and a teaspoonful of sugar.

*Use a discarded safety razor blade to scrape paint from windows as well as to rip with.

Sprinkle corn with warm water before putting it into the popper. It pops much more evenly.

Keep cress, mint, parsley well washed in a glass jar screwed tight. It will keep fresh and crisp for a week or more. Keep in a cool place.

Make a mat of discarded fruit jar rubbers to use under the dishpan in the sink. It will save scratches and stains.

Cream of tartar, a soft brush and a little water will clean filigree jewelry.

When making layer cake, to keep the slices from sliding, stick toothpicks through the layers to hold them in place until the icing or filling is set.

A pair of dry pillows may be kept for the bed during the day, or fresh pretty slips may be put on and removed at night, thus keeping the bed looking fresh.

If a cream soup scorches slightly, add a teaspoonful of peanut butter, after it is set into a dish of cold water and stirred well. The peanut butter will effectively disguise any bitter taste.

Dried orange peel put through the meat grinder may be used for many things. A pinch added to the tea when making a cup will add to its flavor.

The strip left from spiced peaches may be used in the mince meat, adding a delicious flavor to the mince pies.

To smile at trials which fret and fag. And not to murmur—nor to lag. The test of greatness is the way One meets the eternal Every day. —Edmund Vance Cooke.

FOODS FOR OCCASIONS.

The following dishes are like "leisure, a pleasant garment, but not fit for constant wear." These dishes are nice occasionally but can never take the place of the old standbys:

Round of Beef With Raisins.

Put into a casserole one-fourth of a cupful of sweet fat or butter, and when melted add one cupful of the following mixture: Equal parts of celery, carrots, onions, and ham chopped together. Cook until the vegetables are brown, then lay over them a round of beef, from the tougher end, about four pounds. Cover with a second cupful of the mixture and cook in a hot oven for three-quarters of an hour. Remove the meat from the casserole, strain off the vegetables, add a cupful of stock to the strained liquid and return the meat to the casserole.

Over the meat spread one cupful of seeded raisins. Cover and cook for one hour and a quarter longer. Serve from the casserole.

Green Cheese.—Take two ounces of fresh parsley, one ounce of water-cress, one ounce of celery. Dry the parsley in the oven until crisp, but not until it has lost its bright green. Chop the cress and celery, add to the crumbled parsley and mix with four ounces of fresh cream cheese. Season with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a small speck of cayenne; pass the whole through a colander and form into small cheeses to pass with the salad.

Stuffed Baked Potatoes.—Bake potatoes of uniform size. When done cut a slice from one side and remove the potato pulp, to leave the skin for a case. Press the potato through a ricer, add one-half cupful or more of chopped cold boiled ham, season with salt, pepper, a little mustard and butter and mix with melted butter and return to the oven to reheat the potato and brown. Serve with a green salad.

Sandalwood Long Prized. Sandalwood is the product principally of the native state of Mysore, India, and the district of Coorg. Due to the development of the sandalwood oil extracting industry, the exportation of the wood from Madras has steadily declined, while that of the oil has increased. Sandalwood is the most famous of all scented woods. Its use for perfumery and incense dates back thousands of years. The later Greeks regarded it as one of their greatest luxuries, and no festivities were complete without it.

NEW SUITS CLEARLY INTERPRET SPRINGTIME

NEVER was a season more clearly interpreted in suits than the oncoming spring is. A survey of any representative collection of them leaves one impressed with this fact, and it is evident that designers have had it in mind in the choice of styles and colors, and that their interest is centering on new decorative features. The straight and flaring box-coat modes with loose sleeves widening toward the hand, suggest balmy weather. They are made collarless or with small turnover collars, and they reveal a variety of styles in their embellishments. Many of them are embroidered, others adopt the new crepe ribbons or silk braid decorations, and an occasional model, running true to form in considering the Chinese inspiration of the style, show coats with bright applique borders made of pieces of colored silks in various shapes applied with needlework in characteristic Chinese designs. But embroideries in self color and braid or ribbon decorations are universally admired.

In the Galaxy of Blouses

THERE is a considerable diversity of style in blouses this spring, but an actual count in almost any display will reveal the tie-back models and the straight-line models predominating. In materials georgette and crepe-de-chine are in the lead, but there are hosts of lingerie blouses in the dispute position with them. The robe not to be disturbed by any newcomers. There are some new and very attractive trimming features to be noted in the spring style points—two or three of them embodied in the two stars in the galaxy of blouses for spring that are pictured here.

A crepe de chine model appears at the right of the two with the favored medium for embellishing this fabric shown in the eyelet embroidery that comes so near to covering it. There is a rising tide of favor for this sort of embroidery on both blouses and dresses. Two other novelties in decoration find themselves well placed in this model—the unusual small rings about the waist line, for supporting the narrow ribbon girdle. The tassels that finish the bottom. Many blouses indulge in a few handsome tassels, but this one makes prodigious use of them; they are placed so close together that they have the effect of lengthening the peplum.

The dainty blouse at the left makes use of two colors in georgette, a dark shade for the body and a light color for a border at neck, sleeves and peplum. Needlework and flower motifs in silk dots repeat the colors in the blouse. The narrow ribbon girdle slips through four tabs, two at the front and two at the back, which are merely extensions of the border decorated with embroidered flowers. The girdle ties in a little bow at the side.

An interesting and pretty decoration in late arrivals among blouses appears in patent leather, which is cut out to represent grapes, acorns, cherries, etc. They are set in foliage bordered with silk floss matching the blouse in color. Girdles are not always simple—decorations of this kind are often placed on them, or narrow, plaited trills or embroideries.

Julie Bottomley

Stock With Jabot. The stock with a flowing jabot is worn this spring.

Brown Swisses for Summer. The brown Swisses will be very good this summer. On the white grounds there are several new dots, such as a deep emerald green, henna, various golden tints and apricot shades. Medium and pin dots are still the most popular.

Lace Roses. Every material and method of modeling is used in constructing the fashionable artificial flowers. Some beautiful blossoms are made from cream lace. For instance, a large rose is surrounded by a wreath of leaves made with the needle in the semblance of a net mesh ground. The beautiful blossom itself is composed of a series of petals in flowered lace, slightly curved and placed true to nature, one by one like the best specimens of imitated blossoms. Each part is invisibly wired.

Brocaded Satins. Brilliant brocaded satins are worn with dark costumes.

Fabrics for the Summer Clothes

Women are interested in knowing all the fashion news, but there is a great deal that must be accepted as news only, as in its original showing it is not applicable to the use of the woman who makes her own clothes or has them made at home, a very prominent fashion correspondent. Then, too, there are many ideas that, while extremely useful, as suggestions, cannot be adopted in the way that they are originally presented.

Some models are original designs worked out as suggestions for making simple and inexpensive warm-weather clothes that are practical to wear at any hour of a summer day.

The materials selected are the newest cotton imports of the sheer variety. Some of the advanced summer models that the French designers have sent us and some of our best American dressmakers are preparing are very attractive.

In materials, drop-stitch volles, batistes, dotted swisses, organdies, English prints, handkerchief and heavy linens are used. There are imported volles and organdies, daintily embroidered, in many instances the fabrics being of a pale shade and the embroidery white. A frock made of such fabrics naturally would be very simple, with perhaps a tiny ribbon girdle of a contrasting color.

We have had all of these materials with us in past seasons, but this year they are so remarkable in their colorings and weaves that they give us fresh inspiration. All the marvelous hues of the most beautiful silks have been reproduced in plain, brocaded and checked organdies, volles, batistes and swisses. The shades range from the palest tints to the deep browns, cerise shades and new reds.

The clothes prepared for those going South are noteworthy for the practical element combined with the daintiest characteristic of summer apparel. There are no extreme effects. All of the dresses are of designs suitable to the well-dressed woman's summer wardrobe. Many of them are of the chemise type, with trimmings of drawwork and hemstitching. When they are made with a waistline it is placed low on the hips.

Youthful Model in Green Linen.

In direct opposition to the straight-line frocks are those for young girls and the slender woman. These are very full skirts, with a tendency toward the extended hip. One model, developed from bottle-green handkerchief linen, has a straight skirt composed entirely of tucks ranging from the hem, which forms the bottom tuck, and is about three inches wide, to one at the top of the skirt, which is not deeper than a quarter of an inch.

The waist portion has tiny tucks and drawwork running perpendicularly. The skirt is joined to the waist at a low line, the front and back being gathered very tightly, thereby producing the extended hip appearance. The short puff sleeves are of alternating rows of tucks and drawwork. The neck is in V-shape and slashed down several inches, the opening tying with strips of the material finished with hand-rolled hems. These are short, so that the bows are very small.

Another attractive model is of salmon-colored batiste, with plaited silks trimmed with tiny white batiste ruffles.

The frock of white organdie is always becoming and finds infinite use in the average woman's wardrobe, as it can be worn on so many occasions. On a white organdie which embodies many ideas there is a foundation of the material, over which is placed an apron tunic extending three-quarters of the way around the skirt. The novelty lies in the trimming used on both the tunic and the underskirt. It is in the form of circles made of orange and white organdie, one interlacing the other. The chain thus formed is inserted in the organdie. Two rows of it are in the tunic and one in the underskirt. The round neck is bound with navy blue taffeta ribbon, which continues down the slashed portion and ties in little bows. A girdle of the same ribbon about three inches in width encircles the waist at a rather low line and ties in a bow with long flowing ends at one side. This model may be worked out in many different combinations of color.

Linen Frock of Simple Charm. A frock of unusual charm, and one that might easily be made at home, is developed from orchid handkerchief linen and made in simple chemise form, with short kimono sleeves. The neckline is of square cut and slashed at both corners of the front to a depth of about five or six inches. The trimming is quite as simple as the frock itself, and consists of tiny loops made of bias strips of the material.

These loops are on the bottom of the skirt, the sleeves and neck, continuing down either side of the slashed portions of the blouse. A dainty girdle of narrow velvet ribbon a few shades darker than the material from which the dress is evolved, ties in loops at either side at a low waistline.

It will be noted that practically all of this summer's frocks slip on over the head, whether they are in chemise form or made in two separate pieces. In each instance the waist portion is slashed to enable the wearer to don the garment more readily.

White net—always a favorite for lingerie dresses—this season is embroidered, and sometimes is used in conjunction with batiste or another sheer material. A charming frock for a young girl is developed from pale pink batiste and white net. The foundation of the dress is of the batiste. The skirt has an apron tunic extending below the foundation. This tunic is of alternating bands of the batiste and net, the former trimmed with tiny picot-edged ruffles of net.

Clothes For Tropical Climes

With the turning of our thoughts toward clothes to be worn in tropical climes there comes the question of hats. The fabric hat is always popular for resort and warm weather wear. Some of our exclusive American shops are importing and creating hats to accompany each individual frock. One dress is of white georgette crepe, made in straight-line effect, with a deep fichu collar finished with double ruffle of the material, picot edged. An embroidery design of large white daisies done in heavy white silk threads, the centers of the flowers in yellow, is worked into both the waist and skirt portion.

Bathing Suit Now the Thing. No longer do women indulge in ocean bathing solely for the exhilaration of the salt water dip. A very long time ago the bath was the thing and the apparel merely a necessary adjunct, but so surely and so steadily have bathing suit fashions been gaining for themselves a place of importance that we have all but forgotten that we ever went to the ocean just for the pleasure of swimming. New clothes are the first consideration, the dip a secondary one.

No true daughter of Neptune is without two or three of the one-piece jersey swimming suits that have grown in popularity each year. These have become almost a standard fashion in bathing suits, so that there is little change in them, except in the colors favored. Last year the darker hues were in the foreground. This year the shops are showing many bright-colored jersey suits. It is a question as to whether old rose and French blue woollens will retain their charm of color after a few plunges in the ocean.

Decorating the Hat.

The new hat's decoration—if there is any—is usually on the left side, although occasionally a plume or a bow of ribbon falls from the right of the hat. Ribbon is often the basis of the satin spring toque, an immense knot at the side, falling farther down than the shoulder.

Gauntlet Cuffs. Gauntlet cuffs of contrasting material are seen on many new one-piece dresses. Sometimes these cuffs are fashioned of some soft, summery fur-beaver and mole being the favorite pets employed for this trimming.

The face with a retousse nose will look best if the hair is coiled softly at the nape of the neck or in any

WIFE TAKES IT, RESULTS GOOD

"I suffered from influenza a year ago, and it left me with a cough and rundown system. I certainly had the influenza bad," declared Mr. Boyd, whose address is given below.

"A friend recommended Earle's Hypo-Cod to me, so I decided to give it a trial, and after I had taken four bottles it made a big change in me. I feel stronger, feel like a new man, and it has given me an appetite. I recommend Hypo-Cod because I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken since being sick for a rundown condition. I can cheerfully recommend it to anyone that has suffered as I have. My wife is also taking it, and feels better. My home will never be without a bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod. It is a great health restorer," continued John Boyd, 239 East Phila, Ellena St., St. Arty, Pa.

People with coughs, colds and weak, rundown systems are in prime condition to catch even more serious sickness. They should at once rid their system of the congestion, cough and cold, and then fortify and increase their disease resisting vitality. Everyone should take a tonic at this season of the year. Sickness is too expensive. Drop in at the drug store tonight and ask about this new, more modern, powerful and up-to-date tonic that thousands have found does the work so quickly.—Adv.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 181 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

—Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives. Milltown, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Milltown, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 380 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

WISHED THE LADY HAD ACTED

Probably Youngster's Comment Found Echo in the Minds of Others in the Audience.

A politician was making a speech at one of the town's school houses. Naturally, he was telling of all the accomplishments of his administration. And always after he had told one he turned toward his wife, who was in the audience, and said:

"My wife will bear me out in what I have just told."

Over and over he repeated his rather long-drawn-out boasts, despite his yawning audience, always bringing the lady in at the finish.

But at last he stopped. Then an irrepressible high-school youngster turned to his companion and said in a tone loud enough to be heard by those in his vicinity:

"I'm so tired that I wish his wife had borne him out the first time he suggested it."

HOME BREW GOOD IN SEVERE COLD

Two Popular Anti-Freezing Substances Will Prevent Serious Damage in Winter.

CALCIUM CHLORIDE IS CHEAP

It Should Be Carefully Tested as It Frequently Contains Impurities and Free Acids—Alcohol Is Somewhat Expensive.

There are two popular and easily obtained antifreezing substances which when used in proper proportions will prevent the radiator contents from suffering damage during cold weather, according to Ernest Coler in Motor Life. The first of these is calcium chloride, the other alcohol.

Calcium chloride comes in the form of a salt, and is sold under its own name as well as under various proprietary names which usually indicate its freeze-proofing quality. When purchased in the open market calcium chloride is cheapest as well as most uncertain; it should be tested carefully, since it frequently contains impurities and free acids which attack aluminum as well as the metal and solder of radiators. Blue litmus paper, when moistened with a calcium chloride solution containing acids will turn pink. The salt may be neutralized by the addition of soda ash or ammonia until the litmus paper no longer turns pink.

Amount to Use.

The amount of calcium chloride to be used in the cooling system depends on the temperatures likely to be encountered and the capacity of the radiator. Two pounds of calcium chloride added to each gallon of water will keep the mixture from freezing at temperatures not lower than 18 degrees Fahrenheit. Three pounds per gallon will withstand a temperature as low as two and a half degrees Fahrenheit. Four pounds of calcium chloride in each gallon of water will not freeze at 10 degrees below zero.

The calcium chloride should be dissolved in hot water, and care should be exercised that none of the mixture is spilled over the radiator or other parts on which it is apt to leave a somewhat unsightly white deposit.

Whatever it lost of the mixture by evaporation should be replenished from a saturated solution of calcium chloride in water. Such saturated solution is made up by adding the salt to hot water until the liquid refuses to dissolve more of the salt and a layer of undissolved calcium chloride remains at the bottom of the container.

Cleaning Essential.

A point of great importance is to clean the radiator thoroughly before rendering it freeze-proof with calcium chloride solution. This cleaning is perhaps most competently done by one of the radiator cleaning compounds sold by dealers. The cleaning itself serves a twofold purpose. It frees the radiator from accumulated rust, scale and dirt, and incidentally is apt to open tiny leaks which previous to the cleaning were kept closed by dirt.

If the cleaning were neglected the calcium chloride solution would open these small leaks in short order, the solution, leaking out, would render the spot unsightly, and a certain chemical action would be set up at the mixture's exit. All this is avoided, however, if the radiator is cleaned out and all leaks are repaired before the cooling system is filled with antifreezing solution.

Denatured alcohol, enjoys well-deserved popularity with motorists who during cold weather render their radiators and engine jackets immune to damage by adding alcohol to the water. The advantages of alcohol are that it does not have any destructive action on rubber connections or on metal, that it will not form deposits of foreign matter and produces no electrolytic effects. The drawbacks of alcohol—if it may be called such—are, that it is somewhat expensive, and that it boils at lower temperatures than water, and must therefore be replenished from time to time.

LOCATING DISORDERS IN ENGINE CYLINDER

Combination Mirror and Lamp Reflects Hidden Parts.

Two Principal Features to Be Considered in Construction of Device Are Flexibility and Illuminating Qualities.

Unfortunately our eyes are not like those of the lobster, mounted on long posts and sticking out of our heads. If they were we should have little trouble seeing into a transmission or engine cylinder. Since we are handicapped by nature's mistake, we must make the best of the situation and use tools or devices to suit the occasion.

Illustrated below is a combination mirror and lamp, which can be used for inspecting the inside of the engine, the transmission, or the differential.

The mirror should not be more than two inches in diameter, the lamp bulb a regular six-volt and operated from the storage battery.

There are two features to be considered in making the device. First, flexibility, and second, illuminating qualities. Obviously the light will be of but little use unless it is mounted on a flexible tube. The ordinary armored cable cover, or flexible metal gasoline hose of small diameter answers the purpose very well. With this sort of a tubing, the light and mirror may be put into almost inaccessible places and conditions inspected.

With the Combination Mirror and Lamp You Can Find That Lost Nut or Broken Part.

The second point to be considered is the location of the light bulb. If the bulb is located below the mirror, on the tube, it will shine in the eyes of the operator. The best location is shown, at the top of the mirror, where it can be shielded from the operator's eyes, yet give maximum illumination. —Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE PAINTS

Ten years ago the automobile was considered a luxury to be enjoyed only by the rich.

The municipal government of Los Angeles leads all other cities in the United States with a total of 370 official automobiles.

The automobile industry is paying $143,000,000 annually to the federal government, with state fees of $64,000,000 and personal property taxes and other fees of $50,000,000.

A very simple way of cleaning valve stems which are under suspicion of harboring carbon deposits is to inject a little kerosene in the air valve of a carburetor while the engine is running.

In using a grease gun to fill compartments with lubricants, it is a mistake to thrust the nozzle deep into the hole, as this makes the gun hard to operate, and results in a lot of the grease leaking out of the case.

When the car owner allows his rims to become badly rusted, rough particles of the rust and scale act as sandpaper would on the inner tube, and the result is a worn spot and a premature blow.

SOMETHING NEW IN AUTOMOBILES

Here is a car, made in Germany, which the manufacturers expect will revolutionize the automobile industry there. It is a four-passenger car of an entirely new design, having a ten-horse power engine and a maximum speed of 38 miles an hour. The manufacturers claim it will run 27 miles on one gallon of gasoline. It sells for about $800 in American money at the present rate of exchange.

Seat Covers.

Seat covers may usually be cleaned very well with a nonalkaline soap and warm water. The best way to carry out this job is to take the covers off and give them a good scrubbing on the board.

Lubrication Is Needed.

One part which requires lubrication, but which is oftentimes neglected, is the interior of the flexible speedometer drive shaft, to which part an elusive squeak can be traced.

Few owners pay the attention to the ball-bearings that these latter deserve. They usually wait until the garage man calls attention to the injury done by breakage.

By means of a unique system for keeping in touch with distant points through the use of postcards, telephone and telegraph, the San Antonio chamber of commerce is prepared to tell motorists the condition of roads, hunting and fishing throughout the state of Texas.

MRS. BARRETTE TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

Prominent New Hampshire Woman Says Tanlac Brought About a Wonderful Change in Her Condition.

MRS. AURORE BARRETTE of Manchester, New Hampshire

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aureore Barrette, at her residence, 133 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued. "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over the kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any housework at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over it just felt as though my back would break. I would get so weak and worn out I would have to sit down and rest several times a day, and I felt tired all the time.

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and my condition was really becoming serious.

"Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible pains in my back which used to trouble me every day have almost disappeared, and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac until they leave me entirely. I have lots of energy now, and am not only able to do my housework, but I get through the day without feeling the least bit tired. I am no longer nervous like I was, and I sleep well at night.

"I shall always be thankful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

LOOKED LIKE PROMISED MAN

Victim of Carelessness Came Back With Pointed Remark Concerning Companion's Immediate Future.

Two negroes were working in a coal bin in a Mississippi town, one down in the bin throwing out the coal and the other wielding a shovel. The one inside picked up a large lump and heaved it carelessly into the air, struck the other a resounding blow on the head.

As soon as the victim had recovered from his momentary daze he walked over to the edge of the bin and, peering down at his mate, said:

"Nigger, how come you don't watch where you throws dat coal? You done hit me smack on the head."

The other looked surprised. "Did I hit you, nigger?"

"You sho' did," came the answer. "And I jes want to tell you, I've been promising the debil a man a long time, and you certainly does resemble my promise."—New York Evening Post.

Sympathy's Cheaper.

"It's all right to sympathize with the under dog in a fight," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "but a fellow would be a fool to bet on him."

"Glad to see you" is one of the little white lies that are working overtime.

One thorn of experience is worth a dozen roses of theory.

UNWILLING TO TAKE CHANCE

Colored Man Evidently Had Little Confidence in His Own Judgment in Important Matter.

A visitor in Kentucky came across that rare specimen, an unmarried colored man.

The negro was a quiet, elderly person, not shiftless, but quite industrious, so the northern man felt curious and determined to find out why he had remained single.

"Uncle Jim, how does it happen that you are so opposed to matrimony?" The old fellow looked up with a grave face, but there was a twinkle in his eye, as he replied: "Me sub! I ain't exposed to matrimony."

"Well, why is it you have never married?" his inquirer continued. "Haven't you seen anyone you liked?"

"Lawdy! yessah—but you see it's thisaway; I couldn't risk my judgment."

Precious Materials.

"The fact that a gown is not large does not prevent it from being expensive."

"I should not be surprised," rejoined Miss Cayenne, "if we planned our method of buying fabrics and used weights instead of measures. Some of the weaves are so precious that they might as well be sold by the karat."

OUR FINE SPRING OPENING

TWO more Sundays—then Easter! Fogel's Department Store is making its best efforts to give its esteemed patrons the finest possible illustrations of the very latest and best Spring Fashions, and are glad to announce, for prices considerably lower than those of last Spring.

We have not been discouraged by the unusual difficulties to get just what we want, arising from a disturbed and irregular market, but have worked all the harder and taken all the more pains to find the things we believed our patrons would wish and which we felt they should have.

EASTER HATS

Smiling with Spring

Our Millinery this year is larger than ever before. You will have no trouble to find the exact styles and color you are seeking and that best suits your individuality.

Gay, cheery Easter hats—hats as fresh as a sunshiny Spring day.

One after another they will nod and beckon to you. Here, an unusual straw is used; there, you will notice a most original bow of cire ribbon and many others trimmed in pretty Spring flowers. Tailored hats are here, and others somewhat plainer—all of them different and entirely original.

Beautiful Dresses

Spring never brought us such a collection of lovely Dresses at such low prices. Never such variety, never such charm. Delightful Dresses at $10 and $15 up to $20. Taffeta dresses, beaded, embroidered or made up with scalloped skirts, and quaint bodices. Navy, brown, Copenhagen, black—all in many varieties of styles.
